Fleming Trophy – Rules and regulations

In the original rules governing the Fleming trophy it was envisaged to promote research in the various departments of medical sciences.

- The pre-clinical subjects included : Anatomy, Physiology, Biochemistry, Pharmacology and pathology. The departments of Microbiology and Forensic medicine were excluded. While Microbiology has been subsequently included, Forensic Medicine is excluded and needs to be included.
- The Clinical subjects included: Medicine, Surgery, Obstetric-Gynecology, ENT, Eye and Preventive medicine and Dentistry. Dermatology, Orthopedics and Pediatrics, have been added subsequently. At one point of time super-specialty departments were included. The original rules only basic departments of Medical sciences were suggested.

It was envisaged that clinical and pre-clinical subjects should be considered for the award in alternate years.

Some broad guidelines for research were suggested but no weightage or marking system was suggested.
